Aisha has the following Special Rule;

RETURN THE SALUTE

Cost: - 2 Influences

At the cost of 2 influences, all models (friend and foe!) within 8 inches of The Lady forgo their activations for the turn, stand tall, raise their arms and salute those around them, as a mark of respect and deference to the noble purpose of arms and strength of conviction displayed by those who have taken the field of battle.

All un-activated models count as activated for the rest of the turn.

Any hidden models (whether activated or not) withdraw from hiding and make themselves visible.

Any Downed models struggle to their feet, and stand tall in the face of adversity.

Alignment: Neutral

Although none know her true name or identity, the striking figure of ‘The Saluting Lady’ (or more often just ‘The Lady’) is drawn to locations where great rivals are pitted against each other – as likely to side with the good as the evil – seeking examples of great courage or strength of conviction. The Lady seeks out the brave and the foolhardy alike; those who would take up arms and fight for their beliefs regardless of the odds. Her very presence is seen as a salute to those who are unyielding in the face of adversity.
